

PR 2199 C6 1614a

2/el.

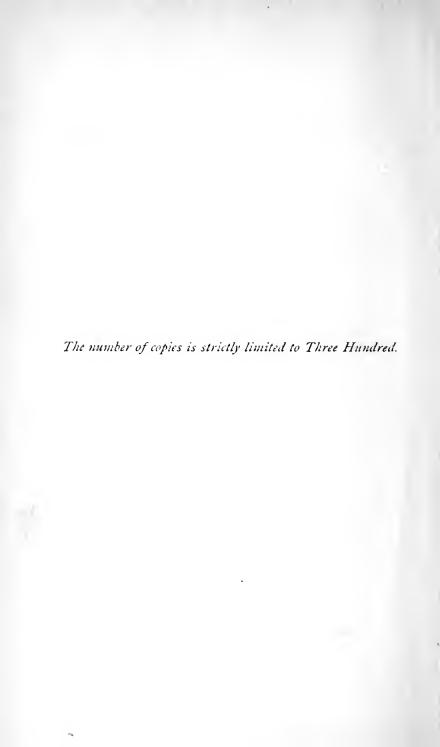

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2010 with funding from University of Toronto

ANTIENT DROLLERIES.

(No. I.)

2533

ANTIENT DROLLERIES.

(No. I.)

Cobbes Propheries,

HIS SIGNES AND TOKENS, HIS MADRIGALLS, QUESTIONS, AND ANSWERES, WITH HIS SPIRITUALL LESSON, IN VERSE, RIME, AND PROSE.

1614.

REPRODUCED IN FACSIMILE

ΒY

CHARLES PRAETORIUS.

WITH A PREFACE

BY

A. H. BULLEN.

LONDON:

24.7.42

PRINTED FOR PRIVATE CIRCULATION. 1890.

PR 2199. C6 1614a

PREFACE.

JOHN DUNTON warned the readers of the Rare Adventures of Don Kainophilus that they would find the narrative "such a hodgpotch of stuff as would make a hermit tear his beard to hear of it." The description is not inapplicable to the drolling prophecies of Master Cobbe.

The preface is signed "Richard Rablet," who is evidently a fictitious personage. Mr. Bertram Dobell plausibly suggests that the author styled himself "Rablet" after François Rabelais, whose Pantagrueline Prognostication is familiar to everybody. It was not uncommon to issue these mock prognostications under assumed names. For instance, Friar Bakons Prophesie, published ten years before Colles Prophecies, purports to be by "William Terilo." The Owles Almanache, 1618 (attributed without evidence to Dekker), bears on the title-page the name of "Mr. Jocundary Merrie-braines."

A mild Shakespearean interest attaches to Cobles Prophecies from the resemblance that some of the pieces bear to the Fool's prophecy in Lear (III. 2); but the whimsical madrigals that follow the prophecies are the salt of our curious tract. The verses on the morrice-dance give a lively description of that old English merriment; they should be compared with the madrigal, in Thomas Morley's collection of 1594, beginning—"Ho! who comes there with bagpiping and drumming?" Richard Rablet was no puritan; he loved

" a pot of good Ale And a merry old tale."

By the fire-side among his cronies in winter,

"When a Cup of good Sacke,
That hurts not the backe,
will make the cheeks red as a Cherry,"

he would be ready with his jests and quips; and we may be sure that in summer-time he was a welcome guest at shearing-feasts and harvest-homes. His talk is occasionally somewhat free, but doubtless he was regarded as a privileged person. Besides, he has stores of admirable counsel. How delicately he warns impulsive maids to be chary of their favours at the feast of St. Valentine!—

"When the Grasse doth spring,
And the Birds gin to sing,
take heed of St. Valentines day;
Least while ye reioyee,
In lighting on your choyce,
ye make not ill worke before May."

Honest mirth is what he advocated. Time, that blunts the lion's paws, will too soon dull the briskness of our lustiest springals. So let the younkers frisk it while they may. "Nunc levis est tractanda Venus," as gentle Tibullus urges. Does not Ovid remind us (though, sooth to say, the reminder is hardly needed) that crookt age comes with noiseless step, "Jam veniet tacito curva senecta pede"? Our cheerful moralist prescribes for old and young—

"When a man is old,
And the wether blowes cold,
well fare a fire and a fur'd Gowne:
But when he is young,
And his blood new sprung,
his sweete hart is worth half the Towne.

When a Maid is faire, In her smocke and haire, who would not be glad to woe her?"

A graver note is struck in the poem, "When Youth and Beauty meet togither"; and "Cobs talke with Wisedome" affords matter for serious reflection. But, take it all in all, the book is mere drollery; a tale of a roasted horse, a riot of mad rhymes, a pleasant piece of tomfoolery.

^{1,} Yelverton Villas, Twickenham, 25th June, 1890.

COBBES PROPHECIES, HIS SIGNES AND TOKENS,

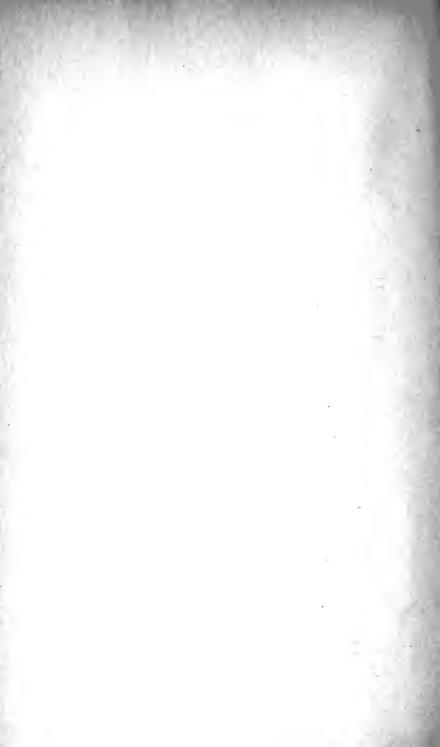

his Madrigalls, Questions, and Anfweres, with his spiritual Lesson, in Verse, Rime, and Prose.

Pleasant, and not vnprofitable.

Reade that will, Judge that can, Like that lift.

Printed at London for Robert Wilson, and are to be sold at his Shop at Grayes-Inne Gate. I 6 I 4.

To the Reader.

Here was vpon a time an odds Country Riming Fellow, whose name was Cobbe: where hee dwelt, I finde not; and what hee was, it skils not: Onely this I note of him, that it seemes by the Memoriall I have of him, that he was in his time, as (no doubt are many now adaies) given to looke so farre aboue the Moone, that as falling through the Clouds, when he wak t, he knew not where he was: but Arange thinges he had in his kead, which he fet dosone as oddely in writing: where if you looke for verse, you are out; if for Rime, you are in: now, if youtake delight in old idle Prophecies, strange Signes and Tokens, though they never come to passe, and to reade now and than of many a strange Madrigall, heere you may have change to fit your choise; how they will fall fit with your humour I know not, and therefore this is all I will say to you. I know the Book Seller will say. What lack you, and I say, I wish all may like you; so, till I see you, though I know you not when I meete you, to the Lord of heauen I leave you.

To the Reader.

Your well willer as to all honest Men.

Richard Rablet.

COBBES PROPHECIES, HIS MADRIGALS, SIGNES, AND TOKENS.

Hen fashions make mens Bodies, And wits are rul'd by Noddies: VVhen Fooles grow rich by formine, And wise must tooles importune.

When Greyhounds must cry crauen, And Mastine Dogges must rauen: When Faulcons stoope to carren, And Poulcats spoile the warren. The Sunne doth leave his shining, The Moone is in declining: The Starres are ouer-shrouded, The Sky is ouer clouded. The Ayre is all infected, The Plague yet not respected: No Charity nor pitty, In Country, nor in Citry. The vertuous all disgraced, The famous all defaced: And rascall kinde of people, Shall looke aboue Paules steeple: When Nightingales are scorned, And Cuckoes are adorned. And Black-birds leave their whiftle, And pearch vpon a Thiftle: And Oates are sowne and gathered, And Children are strange tathered.

And

And Swannes do loofe their feathers, While Geese fortell foule weathers: When Horses tug at Cables, While Asses keepe the Stables. When Virgins waite on whootes, And Knights keepe Beggars doores: And Iackes like Knights shall let it, Because their purses get it, When Noble-minded Spirits, Can have no hope of Merits; But either quite discarded, Or flenderly rewarded: When Owles, and Apes, and Asses, Shall pranke themselves in Glasses. While better kind of Creatures, Of farre more dainty Natures, Shall clad in cloath of lether, To hold out winde and wether. When Schollars mocke their Teachers, And Lay men laugh at Preachers: And woodcockes learne of wizards, To play the doting dizards. When foule flaps shall be painted, And faire paps shall bee tainted, And patience must content her, That no man will lament her: But all things topfic-turuy, Do proue the world fo scuruy, That honest men abhorre it, Why? then, who will care for it? But, that no fuch ill feason, Where truth may dye by treason.

The wicked foole may flourish, While none the good will nourish: Or Earth be scene or heard, To make the world afeard: Pray all good hearts with me, That it may neuer be.

WHen lacke of grace turnes good to euill, And men leaue God to ferue the Deuill: And young men follow imperfections, And old men dote in ill affections. When Beauty is a baite of finning, While wanton threds, make wicked spinning, And wealth doth onely breede ambition, When Nature shewes an ill condition. And basenesse buyes the Badge of Honor, VVhile VVifedome weepes to looke vpon her; VVhen learning teacheth but illusion, VVhere fancies study but confusion. When power is seene but in oppression, VVhile conscience makes no sinnes confession: VVhen Lechery is Natures follace, And Robbery is Reasons purchace. VVhen peace doth breede an ill fecurity, Where pleasure lines but in impurity: When simple vertue is disdained, And fubrill vice is entertained: If such a time should euer be, That, I hope, neuer man shall see. That so the wicked fiende should rage, In enery course of enery age; That

That lack of Grace should thinke it good,
To live upon the fruit of blood;
While Spirits carelesse of faluation,
Will headlong runne unto damnation:
Pray to the Lord of heaven to mendit,
Or in his mercy, quickly end it.

WHen Tradefmen take no Mony, Nor Varmin hunt a Cony: Old Muniplie is no Meacocke, Nor his proud Minckes a Peacocke. The Souldiour is not bloody, His Oftesse is not muddy; The Vsurer not greedy, The rich relecue the needy: The Courtier is not haughty, His Courtizan not naughty. The wantons leaue their winking, The damned crew their drinking: The Geese do leaue their grazing, And idle eies their gazing: Dame Parnellisno pratler, Her parasite no flatterer: The Chapmen leave their buying And Sellers leave their lying. The Skipper leanes his fayling, The Oyster-wines their rayling; The Farmer leaves his tillage, The Begger leaues the village. When Snudges leave their sparing. And Coseners leave their sharing:

When Theeues doe leave their robbing, And heavy harts their throbbing:
When proud men leave their spighting, And Poets leave their byting:
When Children leave their crying, And old men leave their dying;
Strange will be the alteration,
Or else, a consummation.

VV Hen Ships doe faile against the winde. And Nature goes against her kinde: And tongues must say that blacke is white, While mad men make a day of night: When Reason must subscribe to will, To leave the good and take the ill. When Conscience sits and blowes the cole. While Patience liues on pitties dole: And Wisedome shall be poore and bare, While folly lights on Fortunes share; And learning doth but breake the braine, While bare Experience gets the gaine: And love is plaid on follies Stage, Twixt Youth, and Ages marriage. And Augrice with iclous eies, Doth liue in greefe, while pleasure dies: And man becomes but Monies Slaue, While Vertue liues in Honors Graue; When Nature thus doth change her course, From good to bad, from ill to worfe. And, hope of mendment will be small, When thus the Deuill workes in all:

Вz

If ever man should live to know
The wailefull time of so much woe:
As God forbid should ever be,
That Eare should heare, or Eye should see:
Then harty prayers would do well,
For faving of the Soule from Hell.

VV Hen the Fisherman drownes the Eele, And the Hare bites the Huntsman by the heel: When the Geese do drive the Foxe into his hole, And the Thistle ouertops the May-pole. The Hering is at warre with the Whale, And the Drunkard forsweares a pot of Ale: When the Lawyers plead all for pitty, And conscience is the Ruler of a Citty: When the parson will his Tithes forgoe, And the Parish will pay him, will, or no. When the Vsurer is weary of his gaine, And the Farmer feedes the poore with his graine: The Oyster leaues gaping for the tide, And Lob Iolly will not daunce with his Bride. When Prentizes had rather worke then play, And Schollars cannot away with a holy-day: When brabbles and quarrels all cease, And Armies yeelde their Armies to peace; And peace such a power hath won, That Souldiers serue all with a Potgun. When the Fletcher fals out with the Bolt, And the wife must make cursie to a Dolt, When the Night is brighter then the Day, And the Cloudes drive the winde away.

When

When the Snow and the Frost are firehot. And the Costermongers Apples will not rot: When the Asse shall make Musique to the Owle. And the Slut will not weare her cloaths foule. When the Ship shall throw away her saile, And the Dogge shall leave wagging of his taile; And the Rabbets shall runne through the Hey, And the Varmin makes the Warriner runne away: When the Cat is afraid of the Mouse, And the Beggar will walke without a Loufe. When Connies doe Castles undermine, And Lords must waite while Lobcockes dine: And rich men weepe, and Beggars fing, And euery Knaue will be a King. Vntill the Gallowes, or the Whip, Doe take a Villaine in a Trip: When all things thus doe come to passe, That by an Oxe, and by an Asse; The question shall decided be, Why Dogges and Cats cannot agree. When Mowles and Wormes do looke abroad. And Snakes doe combat with the Toade: The Fleyes will not abide the sheetes, Nor idle people walke the streetes, When thus the world doth come about Within the course of Colin Clout: Which never man I hope shall see, Godknowes what then the world will be.

WHen the Winter to Summer turneth,
The Fire cooles, and the water burneth;
B 3 When

When the Fly puts the Eagle to her flight, And the day holds a Candle to the night: When the trees bend downe to the bushes, And the Owle drives the Nightingale to hushes: When the Hare fals to play with the Hound, And the Worme scornes to creepe into the ground; When the Aspe with the Wolfe makes a fray, And the Mouse makes the Cat runne away. When the Owle teacheth the Parrat to speake. And the Goofe makes the Gander to keake: When the Market Crosse is without Corne, And not a house will yeeld a man a horne. When the Clouds commaund the winde to be still, And the Valley will ouertop the hill: When the Storke is afraid of the Frog, And the Cur runs away from the Hog. When the Beggars will leave the high way, And wantons will give over play; When a Moris-dance is without a foole, And a foole be without a Ladle and a toole: When richwares will be at low rate, And a Citty will runne out at the Gate: The Sailer cannot away with a merry gale, And the Constable is afraid of a pot of Ale. When the Goose is mistaken for the Swan, And the Goodwife knowes not her good Man; If the world were come to fuch a change, The alteration would be very strange: But rather then all should go so amisse, Better be content with it, as it is.

VV Hen the day and the night do meete, And the houses are even with the streete: And the fire and the water agree, And blinde men haue power to fee: When the Wolfe and the Lambe live togither, And the blasted trees will not wither. When the flood and the ebbe runne one way, And the Sunne and the Moone are at a stay; When Age and Youth are all one, And the Miller creepes through the Mill-stone: When the Ram butts the Butcher on the head, And the living are buried with the dead. VVhen the Cobler doth worke without his eends, And the Cutpurfe, and the Hangman are friends: Strange things will then be to see, But I thinke it will never be.

VVHen the wind is alwaies in one place, All Horses are of one Race: And all Men are in one case.

When all words have but one sence, All Cases are in one tence; And all Purses have but one expence.

VVhen all hands do sit one Gloue, All harts haue but one Loue: And all Birds be but one Doue.

VVhen all wit is in one head, And all Corne makes but one bread; And all ease is in one bed.

When all Truth is in one hart, And all Knowledge is in one art, And all Divisions are in one part.

When all sport is in one play, When all seasts are in one day: And all States are at one stay.

When all faces have but one feature, And all Spirits are of one Nature; And all worth is in one Creature.

Such wonders will be then to fee, As out of doubt will neuer be.

WHen there is nothing but forrow and care, And the fieldes are all barren and bare; And the Beggers haue a miferable share.

When the Markets are horrible decre, There is nothing to drinke, but small beere: And the rich men keepe beggerly cheere.

When the Children are bawling and crying, And old folkes are swearing and lying: And sicke folkes are sighing and dying.

When Baiard is downe in the mire, And the fat is all in the fire: When loue hath lost his desire.

When Maisters do fall into rages,

And Sérnants are vnpaid their wages; And all their best clothes are in gages.

If ever it should come about, To put the Cockes eies cleane out: And then hope to reuell and rout.

Which I hope neuer to see, But where all faire Gamsters be; Good fellowes will kindly agree.

God knowes, for I cannot tell, Who then goes to Heauen or to Hell.

1/1/Hen Preachers have louing Auditors, And Borrowers haue kind Creditors: When Sutors petitions have comfortable reading, And Forma pauperis hath a fauourable pleading. VVhen loue is the whole rule of life, And the Good man loues none but his owne wife, VVhen there is no spleene, nor any spight, But every one keepes his owne right: VVhen all is as plaine as the high-way, And all goes by yea, and by nay. And one man so well loues another, That there is no false Sister nor Brother, No facing, frowning, nor fighting, But one in another delighting; No oddes twixt the Groome and the Bride, No enuy, nor mallice, nor pride. No punishment, but for offences, No

No care, but all for expences. No time spent, but all businesse, Nor fleeping, but all in heavineffe: No iarring, but all in iesting, No friendship, but all in feasting. No lawing, brabling, nor bribing, No kind of scotling, nor gibing; No painting of ill fauored faces, Nor feeking of true loues disgraces: No tale, but well worth the telling, Nor fauour, but well worth the smelling. No Act, but well worth the doing, No Wench, but well worth the woing; If such a time were happily come, To proue this true in all, or some; Who would not loy in hart to fee, And pray it might so euer be.

When toies and trifles stand for treasure,
And pain mistaken stands for pleasure:
When lust mistaken is for loue,
A lack-daw for a Turtle-doue.
When Crast is taine for Honesty,
Hypocrisie, for Piety;
And babling held for eloquence,
And basenesse stands for excellence:
When truth shall be esteem'd a iest,
And he thats rich, is onely blest.
Vihile all the vertues of the mind,
Do all go whirling downe the wind.
And braine spun thred shall be esteemd;
And Wisedome little worth be deemd:

And flatterers shall stand for friends, To bring but fooles to idle ends: When nothing shall be well begun, But crost, or spoild ere it be done. And enery where the bad for good, Shall be too much misvnderstood: While wilfull folly should reioyce, In making of a wicked choyce: And true discretion grieue to see, In what a case the cursed be If such a time was neuer such, Should come to cursse the world so much: As God forbid it should be so, That Man should so much sorrow know; That Deuils fo should play their parts, Then vp to Heauen with honeit harts.

When seuen Geese follow one Swan,
And seuen Cats licke in one pan:
When seuen Iack-dawes follow one Crow,
And seuen Archers shoot in one Bow.
When seuen Citties make but one State,
And seuen houses haue but one Gate:
When seuen Armies make but one Campe,
And seuen Armies make but one stamp:
When seuen Schollers haue but one gown,
And seuen Schollers haue but one towne.
When seuen Swagrers haue but one trunck,
And seuen tranallers haue but one truncke.
When seuen Horses saddle one Mare,
And seuen Pedlers haue but one packe of ware:
C 2

When seuen Hackney Men haue but one lade, And seven Cutlers have but one Blade; When feuen Butcl rs haue but one staule, And seuen Coblers, haue but one aule: When seuen rivers have but one Fish, And seven Tables haue but one Dish. When seuen Lawyers plead but one case, And seuen Painters worke vpon one face: When fenen Ditties have but one Note, And seven Fidlers have but one Grote. When feuen Guls have but one throat, And seuen Truls, haue but one pericoat; If by the number thus of scuen, The one doe make the odde full euen: That, in the sence of the conceit, The seuen to one doe make vp eight. It seemes not strange yet vnto me Tis strange, now ecuen and odde agree: Yet when it fals, tis no deceit, That seuen and one doe make vp eight.

VV Hen the Hen crowes,
Then the Cocke knowes
what worke must be done,
And when the wind blowes,
Then the Sailer knowes
what course must be runne.

When the Millgoes, Then the Miller knowes what Fish are a flote: eMadrigais.

And when the tide flowes,
Then the Water-man knowes,
what to doe with his Boare.

When the Graise growes.
Then the Mower knowes,
what to do with his Sithe:
And when the Farmer sowes,
Then the Parson knowes
he shall have a Tithe.

When the Buckes take the Does, Then the Warriner knowes, there are Rabbets in breeding: And when the Bag showes, Then the Milke maid knowes the Cow hath good feeding.

WHen the day peepeth,
And the Husbandman sleepeth,
he looseth the gaine of the morning;
But when the Ducke quaketh,
And Sim his Susan waketh,
take heed of working for horning.

When the Bell ringeth,
And Robin-redbrest singeth,
vp maids and make cleane your Dairy;
But if ye lye and stretch ye,
Vutill the lazy catch ye,
rake heed that ye meete not the Fairy.

C₃

When

Madrigals.

When the Cow loweth,
And Cocke-2-doodle croweth,
vp maids and put on your raiment:
For if ye keepe your beds
Till ye loofe your maiden heads,
take heed of a forty weeks paiment.

But when the Starre shooteth,
And the Owle hooteth,
to bed then and take your ease:
But when ye would rest,
Take heed in your nest,
ye find not worse varmin then sleas.

When the Dogge howleth,
And your Dame scowleth,
then wenches take heed of soule weather:
But when the Mouse peepeth,
And your Dame sleepeth,
then laugh and be merry togither.

When the Watch walketh,
And at the doore talketh,
Lads and Guirles, looke to your doores;
Then to bed roundly,
And fleepethere as foundly,
as if ye were all knaues and whores.

VV.Hen a man is old,
And the wether blowes cold,
well fare a fire and a fur'd Gowne:

-Madrigals.

But when he is young, And his blood new fprung, his sweete hart is worth halfe the Towne.

When a Maid is faire,
In her fmocke and haire,
who would not be glad to woe her:
But when the goes to bed,
To loofe her maiden-head,
how kindly her Good-man goes to her.

When the Grasse doth spring,
And the Birds gin to sing,
take heed of St. Valentines day;
Least while ye reioyee,
In lighting on your choyee,
ye make not ill worke before May.

When the Sunnes shines bright,
And the Day is light,
then Shepheards abroad with your slocks:
But if the Heyser play,
And the Heard be away,
take heed the Bull prooue not an Oxe.

When the Corne is ripe,
And the Straw makes a pipe,
then to it with the Sithe and the Sickle.
But when ye make the stacke,
If ye lye on your backe,
take heed how ye laugh till ye tickle.

Madrigals.

When the Apples fall,
And the Patridges call,
Then Farmers have home with your Corne:
But when ye make your Mowes,
Take heed to your Cowes,
they beare not a sheafe on a horne.

When the trees doe bud,
And the Kids chew the cud,
then fall to your digging and fowing:
But if your feede be nought,
Or your worke be ill wrought;
then blame not the ground for ill growing.

When the Sunne is downe,
And the Guess come to towne,
long tranailers lightly are weary.
But if mine Oste be a good fellow,
And mine Ostesse be not yellow;
who then would not laugh and be merry.

In the month of May,
Is a pretty play,
is called youths wooing;
But long it will not last,
For when that May is past,
there will be no doing.

For loue is so quicke, He stands on a pricke, that likes no delaying:

For idle excuses, Are but loues abuses, that marke all the Maying.

The squint of an eye,
May oft looke awry,
infancies new fashion:
But winke and shake the head,
And the colour once dead,
there is the true passion.

When the eye reedeth,
How the hart bleedeth,
in filence true teares:
Then eafily may the mind,
If that it be not blind,
fee what the spirit beares.

For passions staid lookes,
Are Truths only books,
where kindnesse best reedeth;
The time and the place,
In beauties best grace,
how loue euer speedeth.

VV Hen the time of the yeare,
Doth cal for good cheere,
why should we not laugh and be merry;
Vhen a Cup of good Sacke,
That hurts not the backe,
will make the cheeks red as a Cherry.

D

When the thred is all spun,
And the worke is all done,
why should not the work-solkes go play:
When a pot of good Ale,
And a merry old tale,
would passe the time smoothly away.

When the Medowes are growne,
And the Grasse abroad throwne,
for shame give the wench a green gowne,
But when the Haruest is in,
And the Bread in the Bin,
then, Piper play laugh and lye downe.

When my Dame fals to Bake
A Pudding and a Cake,
will make cheare in Bowles;
But when the Oyle of Malt,
Makes the heeles for to halt,
take heed of your lop heavy Nowles.

N theolde time,
When an odde-pumpe rime,
would haue made a Dog laugh:
And the Offesse of the Swan,
Would swinge her good Man,
with a good quarter staffe.

When more then a good many, Had nine: Egges a penny, and Corne was fixe pence a strike;

Then true blinde deuotion,
Brought such to promotion,
As neuer I hope will be like.

When the Cat kild the Mouse,
And the Dog kept the house,
and all was wholesome and cleanely;
And Iohn and his Ioane,
Did line of their owne,
full merily, though but all meanely.

When Beefe, Bread and Beere, Was honest mens cheere, and welcome and spare not: And the Man kist the Maid, And was not affraid, come who will I care not.

When right should have reason,
In time, place and season,
and Truth was beleeved;
When these things did go thus,
Which Truth doth not show vs,
then Charity slourisht:
When love and good Nature
In every Creature,
a kind Spirit nourisht.

But if that it were so,
As many do seare no,
that some were sore blinded;

Niadrigals.

What ever the cause was, Tis now at another passe, men are otherwise minded.

For fuch as have prooued,

What is to beloued,

will ever be heedfull:

That nothing be wanting,

Though somewhat be scanting,

to comfort the needfull.

And therefore no matter,
How ere fooles do flatter,
their wits with their will;
I wish the time present,
In all true contemtment,
to slay with vs still.

If the day were as long as the yeare,
And the Gossips were making good cheere,
they would thinke the time were but short:
But if they fall to brawling and scolding,
And the Beggars be at the vpholding,
oh there would be delicate sport.

If the Apples were once in the fire,
Each Gossip had her pot by her,
and enery one to her tale:
And the Wife that went once for a maid,
Would tell what trickes she had plaid,
oh there would be worke for whole sale.

If the Wine once did worke in the braine,
And the Wenches were right in the vaine,
then talke of the reckoning to morrow;
Let Husbands take care for their wives,
And Gossips make much of their lives,
tivey are sooles that will dye for forrow.

IT was my hap of late by chance, oh pretty chance; To meet a Country Moris-dance, oh pretty dance. When cheefest of them all the foole, oh pretty foole: Plaied with a Ladle and a toole, oh pretty toole: When every Younker shak'r his Bels, oh pretty Bels; Till sweating feete, gaue fohing sinels, oh fohing smels. And fine Maide-Marian with her smoile, oh pretty smoile: Shew'd how a Rascall plaid the Roile, oh pretty Roile. But when the Hobby-horse did wihy, oh pretty wihy; Then all the Wenches gaue a tihy, oh pretty tihy. But when they gan to shake their Boxe, oh pretty Boxe: And not a Goose could catch a Foxe, oh pretty Foxe.

The

Signes and Tokens.

The Piper then put vp his pipes,
oh pretty pipes;
And allthe VVoodcoks lookt like Snipes,
oh pretty Snipes.
And therewith fell a thowry streame,
oh pretty streame:
That I awakt out of my dreame,
oh scuruy dreame.

Signes and Tokens.

VV Hen Charing-Croffe and Pauls Church meet, And breake their fast in Friday street: When Ware and Waltham goe to Kent Togither, there to purchase Rent. When Islington and Lambeth ioyne, To make a voyage to the Groine: And Southwarke with St. Katherines gree, To ride in post to Couentry: When Turmele-street and Clarken-well, Haue sent all Bawdes and Whores to Hell: And Long-ditch, and Long-lane do try, Antiquities for honefly; And Newgate weepes, and Bridewell greeues. For want of Beggars, Whores, and Theeues. And Tyburne doth to Wapping Iweare, Shall neuer more come Hang-man there: When blinde men fee, and dumbe men read, Which feemes impossible indeed. And by all rules that I can see, I thinke in truch will neuer be.

Then

Then, then ye may fay then, Knaues now will be honest men.

VV Hen Youth and Beauty meet togither, theres worke for Breath; But when they both begin to wither, theres worke for Death.

When Loue and Honor worke togither, theres worke for Fame; But when they both begin to wither, theres worke for shame.

When Hope and Labour go togither, theres worke for gaine, But when they both begin to wither, theres worke for paine.

When Wit and Vertue worke togisher, their work goes well; But when they both begin to wither, theres worke for Hell.

Let then perfections liue togither, and worke for praise. For when their worke begins to wither, their worth decaies.

IF all Rules of Phisicke, Had onely help for the Tisicke; And all Chirurgeries ground, Were for the healing of one wound. Signes and Tokens.

And all kind of preaching, Were but for one Parish teaching, And all kind of diet, To keepe one tongue in quiet. And all kind of pleafures, Were but for one mans treasures: And all kind of learning, Were for one points discerning; And all kind of disputing. Were for one points confuting. And all kind of writing, Were for one mans delighting: If there should be such a season, All so to go against reason; Which I thinke neuer to see, Let them that know thinke what will be, WHen the Rich are all agreed,

On the purses of the poore to seede:
And the wise men finde out sooles Lands,
To get them all into their hands.
And Wenches haue tricks with their cics,
To catch men, as Candles do Flies:
And Swagrers make the high-way,
The cheefest part of their stay.
When Bawds and Whores study the Art,
To scape the Whip and the Cart;
And Cut-pursses all take their oathes,
To keepe the Hang-man in cloathes.
When thus the Deuill doth lurke,
To fall with the world to his worke:
Which would be a greatforrow to see,
Pray, that it may neuer be.

Qa. WHy Should a rich man become a Theefe? Because the sweete of gaine ouercomes his (fence. Que. Why (bould any man want Mony? An. Because some spend it faster then they can get it. Que. Why are old folkes in love? An. Because ease breeds idlenesse. Que. Why is Tobacco in such esteeme? An. Because it dries vp Rheume, and spends drinke. Que. Why do so many people use gaming? An. Because they want wit for better exercise Que. Why is a Cuckold patient? An. Because of profit or feare. Que. Why are men icalous of their wives? An. Because they are Fooles. Que. Why are offenders punisht? An. To keepe the Subjects in peace. Que. Why are Gallants flattered? An, For a Fooles pride, and a Knaues profit. Que. Why do Children cry? An. Because they know not what they would have. Que. Why doe Beggars skold? An. Because they are commonly drunke. Que. Why doe Apes counterfeit men? An. Because men counterfeit Apes. Que. Why are Lawes ordained? An. To giue euery man his right. Qu. Why are their such delaies in their execution? An. Because there are so many causes to dispatch. Que. What makes wares deere in the world? An. The multitude of people, Que.

Qu. And what makes cheapnesse?

An. Aboundance.

Qu. Where is the best dwelling in the world?
An. In a mans owne house.

Qu. And where is the best being for all men?
An. In Heauen.

Qu. What is of most esteeme in the world?

An. Mony.

Qu. What is the least cared for of a great many?
An. Conscience.

Qu. Why is honesty with many held a Iest?

A. Because there are so sew honest in earnest. Qu. Which is the best ground to plant on?

An. That which is a mans owne.

Qu. Why should Beggars line without labour? As. Because their Mony comes in easily.

Qu. Why do Gamfters fall out fo oft?

An. Because losse breeds impatience.

Qu. Why are rich men most fickly?

An. Because they take to much ease.
Qu. What is the best Phisicke for all Matures?

An. Motion.

Qu. When is best taking Phisicke?

An. When one is sicke.

Qu. What sicknesse is most dangerous ?

An. The Plague.

Qu. What most unsightly ?

An. The Poxe.

Qu. What most continuing?

An. The Ague.

Qu. What most incurable?

An. The Gout. Ou. What most painefull? An. The Tooth-ach. Qu. What most common? An. The Rheume. Qu. What is ill for the eye-fight? An. An Enemy. Qu. what is good for it? An. Gold. Qu. What is the fruit of Learning? An. Pride, pleasure, or profit. Qu. What is the honor of the Law? An. Iustice. Qu. What is the Glory of the Law? An. Mercy. Qu. And what is the force of the Law? An. Obedience. Qu. VV hat makes Lawyers rich ? An. Contentions of Clients. Qu. What makes Magistrates honorable? An. Execution of Iustice. Qu. What is the poore mans happine se? An. Patience. Qu. And what is the wife mans wealth An. Content. Qu. VV hy are faire women most loued? An. Because mens eies marre their wits. Qu. VV hy do wisemen keepe Fooles ? An. To exercise their Charity. Qu.VV by are Divines most worthy Reverence? An. Because they are the mouths of God vnto his Qu. VV hy are so many Sects in Religion ?

(people.

An Because the Deuil sowes sedition in the Church. Que. Why do many befoole themselves with Idolatry? A. Because blindnes in deuotio breeds indiscretion. Que.why (hould wife men be undone by suretiship? An. Because their loue exceeds their wits. Ou. Why are men undone by women? An. Because they had rather be slaues then frec-men. Que. Why do many Louers grow franticke? An. Because they seek that which is hard to be found. Que. Why do mad men talke so much? A. Because their tongues wag with the wind of their Que. Why are honest harts most crossed? (braine. An. To try their patience. Qu. . When are the patient most happy? An. At the houre of Death: Que. What is the greatest feare in the world? An. To dye. Que. what is the greatest greefe? An. Want. Que. Why do Phisitions die? An. Because Death is to cunning for them. Que. Why doe men cry out vpon Fortune? An. To excuse their follies. Que. Why do Labourers sing? An. For the hope of their wages. Que. Why dowise men take thought? An. Because their wits are oppressed. Que. Why are fooles full of Mony? An. Because tis their baby to play withall. Que. Why do Misers build faire houses?

An. To mocke Beggars.

Que. why doe Beggars love their drinking?

Cobs talke with W! sedome.

An. Because it is an exercise of Idlenesse.

Que. Why do Scolds love scolding?

An. Because it is their natural Musique.

Que. Why do not Theeves feare hanging?

An. Because it is so easie a punishment.

Que. Why doe not the wicked feare God?

An. Because they are to great with the Deuill.

Que. Why are the vertuous most happy.

An. Because their ioyes are in heaven.

Cobs talke with Wisedome.

Ome Wisedome, let me speake with thee a word or two, Some bleffed Lesson reade to me what I shall do: What faist thou? First, that Christ his Crosse must be my speede: My labour else would be but losse, what ere I reade. With Alpha then I must begin to finde a friend: To lead me from the way of sinne to comforts end; And in Omega reade the last of all my loue, Wherein my foule all forrow past, her ioy may proue: I must not sinne, I cannot chuse, ah wo is me, To take the ill and good refuse, throughwant of thee.

Cobs talke with Wisedome.

In Youth I scorned thine advice, now I am old, I hold thy counsaile in more price

1 hold thy countaile in more price then purest Gold:

Thou readst me patience, I confesse it easeth paine,

But little hope yet of redresse, thereby I gaine:

Thou readst me penitence for sinne, with forrowes sinart,

Oh there the forrow doth begin that wounds my hart.

Thou readst me hope to heale my wound. with forrowes teares;

But conscience makes my hart to swound, with sorrowes searcs:

Thou readst me Faith, to hold my Hope on Mercies Grace,

But when that Faith the gate would ope, feare hides my face.

Thou readst me love, the line of life that leades to blisse;

But hatefull finne hath wrought the strife, where no loue is.

Thou readst me Truth yet in the word, that failes no trust:

But it doth onely Grace affoord vnto the just.

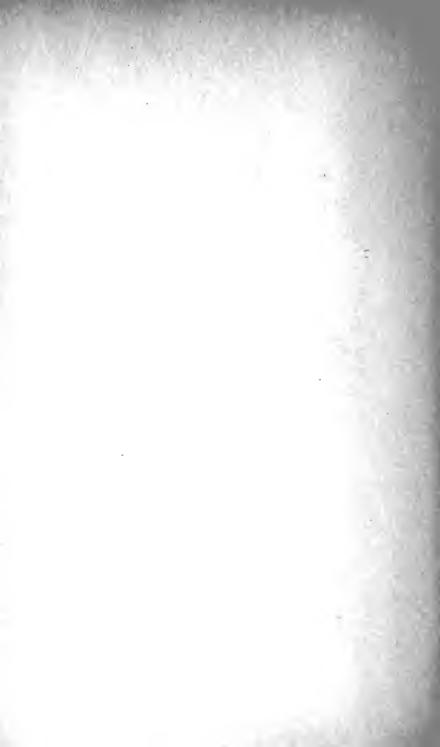

Thou readst me Mercy, yet will heale the wounded hart:

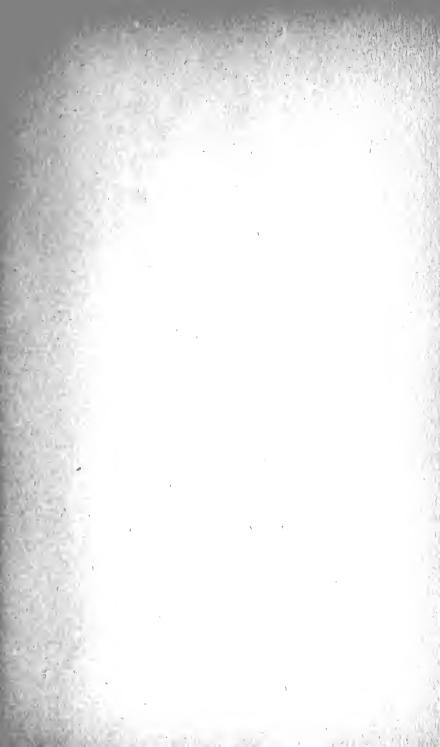

To Mercy then let me appeale, to cute my smart.

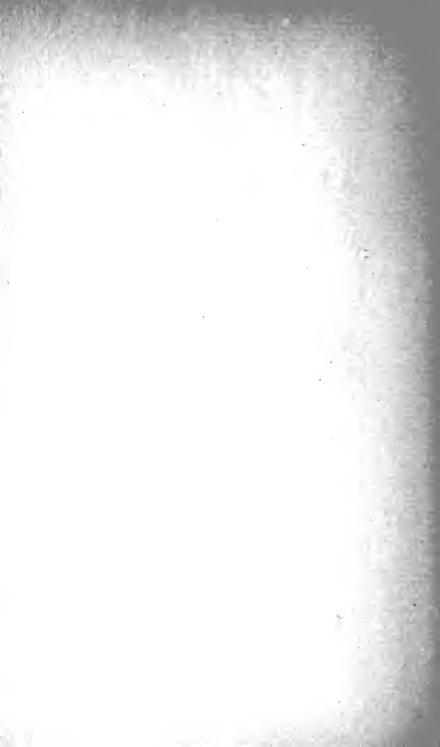

Cobs talkewith Wisedome.

And with true faithfull penitence,
to forrow fo;
That Hope with happy patience,
to Heauen may go:
And there with Ioy at Mercies gate
receive that Grace,
Where never Soule that thou dost hate,
may have a place.

FIXIS

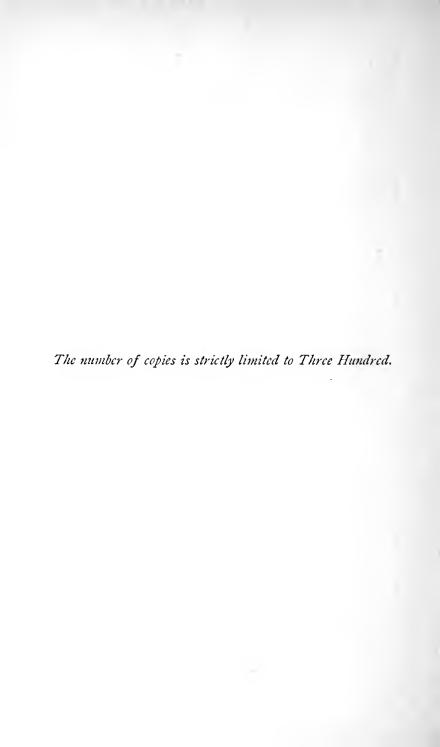

ANTIENT DROLLERIES.

(No. 2.)

ANTIENT DROLLERIES.

(No. 2.)

Pimlyco, or, Runne Red-Cap.

TIS A MAD WORLD AT HOGSDON.

1609.

REPRODUCED IN FACSIMILE

BY

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS,

WITH A PREFACE

вv

A. H BULLEN.

OXFORD:

PRINTED FOR PRIVATE CIRCULATION 1891.

Oxford

HORACE HART, PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

PREFACE.

HOGSDON, or HOXTON, a not very cheerful quarter of the town to-day, was formerly a favourite resort of holiday-makers. It was noted for cakes, custards, and "Pimlico" ale.

The origin of the name "Pimlico" has been discussed from time to time in Notes and Queries, but more light is still needed. It is usually stated that a person named Pimlico kept a place of entertainment at Hoxton, and that the place was afterwards called by his name. In the first volume of the first series of Notes and Queries Edward F. Rimbault quoted from Newes from Hogsdon, 1598,-"Have at thee [sic] then, my merrie boyes, and hey for old Ben Pimlico's nut browne." I have never seen the Newes (which Rimbault described as unique); and I should have been inclined to regard the quotation as spurious if Rimbault had not expressly stated that he wrote with the tract before him. In early seventeenth century plays there are many references to the place Pimlico, and to Pimlico ales; but I cannot recall any mention of Ben Pimlico.

On 15th April 1609 "a book called Pimlico or Runne Red Capp tis a mad world at Hogsden" was Register (Arber's Transcript); and on 24th April the same publisher entered "a ballad called Haue with you to Pimlico." Both the book and the ballad were transferred on 3rd May to William Barley. The ballad may be extant, but I have never seen it; the "book" is here reproduced, among our Antient Drolleries, for the amusement of curious readers.

The anonymous writer describes with much gusto how people of every degree flocked to Hogsden to drink the Pimlico ales. Play-goers deserted the Fortune and the Bull for the attractions of Pimlico:—

"Each afternoone thy House being full,
Makes Fortune blind, or Gelds The Bull." (Sig. D. 2.)

In 1609, when our tract appeared, Pimlico seems to have reached the height of its prosperity; for in 1610 Ben Jonson, in The Alchemist (v. 1), speaks of its notoriety as a thing of the past:—

"Gallants, men and women,
And of all sorts, tag-rag, been seen to flock here
In threaves, these ten weeks, as to a second Hogsden,
In days of Pimlico and Eye-bright'."

But for many years afterwards, as we learn from the pages of Shirley, Jasper Mayne, Glapthorne, &c.,

[&]quot; "Eyebright" is mentioned in our tract:-

[&]quot;Eyebright, (so fam'd of late for Beere)
Although thy Name be numbred heere,
Thine ancient Honors now runne low;
Thou art struck blind by Pimlyco."

Pimlico continued to be a place of entertainment. A correspondent of Notes and Queries (6th Series, 9, 296) quoted from A New Dictionary of the Terms, Ancient and Modern, of the Canting Crew (n. d., early eighteenth century),—"Pimlico.—A noted Cake-house formerly, but now converted into a Bowling-green of good repute at Hogsden near London." To this day the name is preserved in Pimlico Walk, a narrow alley leading from High Street, Hoxton, to the Church 1.

If I were in the mood for annotation, the little tract here reproduced would afford ample opportunities; but I refrain. In this short series of Antient Drolleries I propose to give mere reprints of quaint out-of-the-way tracts. The series will, I trust, be useful to those who are studying or editing Elizabethan Writers. Shakespearean editors may notice that the present tract testifies to the popularity of Pericles (printed in the same year, 1609):—

"(As at a New-play) all the Roomes

"(As at a New-play) all the Roomes
Did swarme with Gentiles mix'd with Groomes.
So that I truly thought, all These
Came to see Shore, or Pericles." (SIG. C.)

¹ The Pimlico in the West is of later date than Pimlico, Hoxton. Cunningham gives some extracts from the books of the overseers of the poor for St. Martin's in the Fields, dated 1626 to 1630; and these are said to supply the earliest notices of the Western Pimlico. There is a hamlet named Pimlico in Oxfordshire, and there is (or was) a Pimlico in Dublin. A small West Indian island bears the name; and in Barbadoes there was "a strange bird the Pemlico, which presageth storms."

Shore is, I suppose, Heywood's Edward IV.

Pimlico is a rare tract. Our reprint is from the copy in the Malone collection, Bodleian library. Malone's is the only copy that I know, but probably others are extant. There was a copy among the books that Robert Burton (Democritus Junior) bequeathed to the Bodleian, but it seems to have disappeared. I know not what became of Heber's copy.

169, New Bond Street, London, 14th August, 1891.

¹ I thought there would be no barm in reproducing the portrait of Elinour Rummin (which is bound up with Malone's copy) from the 1624 edition of Skelton's well-known poem.

ELINOVR RVMMIN,

The famous Ale-wife of England.

Written by Mr. Skelton, Poet Laureat to King

Henry the egiht

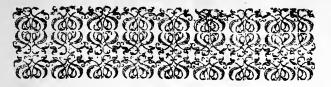

When Skelton wore the Lawrell Crowne, My Ale put all the Ale-wives downe.

LONDON

Printed for Samuel Rand 1624.

PIMLYCO.

Or, Runne Red-Cap.

Tis a mad world at Hogsdon.

AT LONDON,

Trinted for fo: Busbie, and Geo: LOFTIS, and are to bee sould under St.

Peters Church in Cornehill. 1009.

()

Patrono Pimlyconico.

Facie Claro, Facesijs Raro, Thoma Normano.

A LL hayle, (ô Tom Norman,)
I make thee, the Foreman
Of Pimlyeo Iuty:

You are charged to enquire Sir, What kindles that fire fir,

That burnes with such fury.

What fire doe you suppose sire Tis the fire of your Nose sir,

Which your Face beares about.

For (like to the fornace,

That glowes in the Glasse-house,)
It never goes out.

To keepe that hye Colonr, And make it looke fuller,

You shall dieit in graine sire

Of the Pimlyco Juice, If you get the right vie,

O how well will it staine sir.

I create you Sole Patron Of the Pimlyco Squadron

choose therefore Ale-cumners.

That now against Easter, (If you purpose to seast there) may be your fore-runners:

Hoyst then vp your Sayle sir,

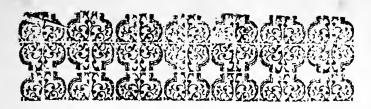

For rich Pimlyco Ale sir,

That cullors like Roses.

With your Copper Seale, marke fir, All those that Embarke sir,

For Pimlyco-Nofes.

Vade, Vale, Caue ne tisubes.

To all Trauellers.

Ou that weare out your lines and weary your bodies, in Discourry of strange Countries, (been for pleasure or profite) Rig out a Fleet, and make a Voiage to an Iland which could neuer be found out by the Portugals, Spaniards, or Hollanders, but only (and that now of late) by Englishmen. The name of it is Pimlyco, Here have I drawne a large Map of it: by this Chart, may you in a few houres, and with little or no winde, arive in the very mouth of the Hauen. Some that have travelled thither, affirme it to be a part of the Continent, but the better fort of Nauigators say, it is an Iland: full of people it is, and they are very wilde, the women beeing able to endure more, and to doe better Service than the men. Diversare of opinion, that it is an inchanted Iland, and haunted with strange Spirits; for the people there, once enery Moone, are either starke mad, or else loose their owne shapes, and are transformed into Beasts, yet within twelve houres, recover their wittes and shapes againe. The Pimlyconians are most of them Malt-men, and exceeding good fellowes, all their delight beeing in Eating and Drinking; they live not long, for a man can hardly stay amongest them two dayes: if he doe, he is in great danger, by reason of a certaine disease, (which the Iland naturally breedes) called the Staggers, through which, many of them come to their Downe-fall, or if they scape that, then are they in feare to be made away by Smallshot, in discharging of which, the Pimlyconians are very active and cunning.

The

To all Trauellers.

The Iland begins now to be as rich as it is populous: fish hath bin sildome taken there, but slesh is better cheape then Mackrell here. Wilde Duckes and wilde Geele slie there vp and downe in aboundance: you may have a Goose sowe'd in Pimlyco, for the value of twelve pence sterling. Woodcockes (in many moneths of the yeere) are to be catched there by whole dozens. It is full of fatte pasture, and thats the reason such multitudes of young Colts runne there. A hot Climate it is, and by that meanes the people are subject to infection, which takes them first in the Head, and so falls downe into their legges, and those fayling they are (in a maner) gone. The Governour of the Iland hath much adoe to keepe himselfe vptight, so that he is compelled to give those that are under him, often times very Hard measure, yet are they so unruly, that every houre one or other goes to the Pot,

Thus have I given you a taste, both of the People and of the Countrie; if you sayle thither, you may drinke of deeper knowledge: But take heed you take a skilfull Pilot with you; be fraighted with as much wit as you can carry aboord, for all will be little enough to bring you from thence, and take heede what Lading you take in there, for the commodities of Pimlyco have suncke many Merchants. Pay thankes for my Councell, and thinke well of my Pimlyconian Discoucrie.

Farewell.

Rees that of late (like wasted Heyres, Dz like old men, bzyed op with cares,) Stood pozely, now loke fresh e grane. As Banck-rupts new set op agen.

Description of the Spring.

Medowes that whileme barren tap, (Doze naked than the trodden way,) Wileare garments now, woven all of Flowers, And waite on Flora in her Bowers. Shepheards that burft not, (for the colo,) The Snowie heads of Hills behold, Dow (deftly piping) from cole Fountaines, Lean Lambes and Kiddes up to the Mountaines. The Day, when all Birdes hold their Weddings, Dauncina Loue measures in soft Treddings,) Is pall : The Yeare did it religne, In bonour of Saint Valentine. And note his Fethered Couples ling, Their Nuptiall Songs before the Spring. The Vernall Gates are fet mide open, And firem'd with Flowers and Herbes, in token That May (Loues Queene) is comming in, Wilho 12. foll @ones hath absent bin. In this bwet bealon, from mybeb, 3 earely rofe, being wakened By'th beating of a Golden flame, Wahich (to me) in at window came. Bog from bis Pallace in the East, The King of Light in Burple drett, (bet thicke with Bold and precious Stone, Tubich like a Rocke of Diamond honne,)

Description of the Sun-rifing.

Mas dalone along beab'ns Silver way. Bothe 4. Horfes of the Day. And as the Chariot mounted higher, The Sun-god fæm'o to rive in fire. Forth came be in this brane aborning. Mo court his Lone (the Rofie Morning.) The Chaines of Pearle about her necke, De toke from ber himfelle to becke. They were her facours and he woze them Will night, and did agen reftoze them. The wonders (of bn-valued worth.) Wilhich thefet wo wrought, intic's mee forth: Weary with walking, bowne 3 th:ew Dy bovie, on a bancke where grew The pretty Dazie, (Eye of Day,) The Prime-Rose tohich boes firtt bisplay Wer routhfull colours and firft bies ; , Beantie and Death are Enemies. Cowslips sprung likewise bere and there, Cach blade of graffe (fiffe as a Speare) Standing bpright to quard the Flowers, As if they had ben their Paramoures. Anon a Yonker and his Laffe, Wight I fa waltling on the Graffe, Sha livoze that would not fall, and pet bbæ fell, and bid a Greene-Gowne get, (A Greene-gowne, but no Gowne of Greene.) At length (in Couples) moze were fane: Dom ran, some walked, and some fat killing. Pothing was loft, but what was milling So close they topno in their Delights, That they allfem'd Hermaphrodites, D2 rather Mermaides on the land. Because the Shees had th'byper hand. They grae'd the fields, the fields them grae'd. For tho none were in order plac'de, But fat (as Flowers in Barbens grow) Thinly, which makes the braver thow.

Pet (like fo many in one Roome,)
All fam'd to weave within a loome,
Some curious piece whose beautie trands,
on the rare Skill of funday hands.

As thus they fat, and I them fam. A Frame (as rare) mine cies bid dalio (With wonder) to behold a farre. The brightnes of the Kingdomes * Starre: Athouland Steples, Turrets, Towers, (Longings, all fit for Emperours,) Lifted their proud heads bone the Skie. As if they had fole Soueraigntie, Di'e all the Buildings in the Land, And fæm'd on Hilles of Gould to frant. for the Suns Beames on them beinathed. They thewed like Mynes new burnifhed. Upon the Left hand and the Right, Two * Townes (like Citties) fed the Sight, With pleasure and with admiration. Hoz (as they fland) they beare proportion, As to an Armic boe the Wings, (The maine Battalion led by Kings.)

Spine eye his obiects could not vary,
Pet toke delight here still to tarry,
But not knowing how to weare out time,
By chance I found a Booke in Ryme,
Chait in an age when sew wayt well,
(Pans Pipe (where none is) does excell.)
D learned Gower! It was not thine,
Poz Chaucer, (thou art moze Divine.)
To Lydgates grave I should do wrong,
To call him by by such a Song.
Po. It was One, that (bove his Fate,)
Whould be Styl'd Poet Laureace;
Duch like to Some in these our dates,
That (as bold Prologues do to Playes,)
With Garlonds have their Fore-heads bound.

Pet onely empty Sculles are crownbe:

* London.

* Islington,& Hogsdon,

Skelton.

Dz like to these (sæing others hye)
Will lit so, tho their Searc they buy,
And fill it by with loathed Scoone,
fit Burdens being by them not bosne,
But sæing their Trappings rich and gay,
The Sumpter-Horsestrudge away,
Sweating themselnes to death to beare them,
Wilhen pope lades (drawing the Plough) outweare

(them. But all this while we have fozgot Dar Poer: the Inam'dehim not, Butonly thould his Rymes recite, These (all would cry) did Skelton waite. A tournde fome leaves and red them o'ze, And at last speed his Elynor, Dis Elynor, whose fame spied faile, All England through for Mappe Ale. Elynor Rumming warmoe his wit With Ale, and his Rimes paide for it. But fæing thou takit the Laurears name (Skelton) I inftly the may blame, Because thou leau at the Sacred Fount, For Liquor of lo bale account. Det (3 remember) euen the Prince Df Woelie, with his ven (long lince) Ledde to a fielde, the Mice and Frogges; Dthers have ball'o out bokes of Dogges: Dur dinine Maro spent much ople About a Gnat. Dne kops a cople With a poze Flea (Nafo, whose wit Brought him by Phæbus fice to fit.) Since then thele Rare-ones flack'o their Brings. From the bie-tuned ads of Kings Foz notes lo low, lette is thy Blame, Foz in their pardon fands the Name. Let's therefoze lead our eyes allray, And from our owne intended may, Go backe to view thine Holleffe piqure, Takom thus thou draw's in lively coloure. Skeltons

Skeltons tunning of Elynor Rumming.

TEll you I chill,
If that you will
I while be fill,
Of a comely Iyll,
That dwelt on a hill,
But thee is not grill,
For thee is foundhat lage,
And well worne in age,
for her vilage
It would allwage
I mans Lorage.

Herioathlyleare
Isnothing eleare
But vgly of cheare.
Droopy and drowly,
Scuruey and lowly,
Herface all bowly,
Comely crinckled,
Wonderly wrinckled,
Like a roaft Pigs eare
Briffled with heare.

Herlewdlippes twaine. They Slauer men layen, Like a copp rayne, A gummy glayre: Shee is vgly faire, Her note some=deale hooked And camoully crooked,

25 3

Deuer

Petter flopping, But cuer dzopping Her Skin loofe and flacke, Gzapned like a Sacke, With a crooked backe.

Her epengowndy, Arefull, busowndy, Forther are bleared, And thee grap heared, Jawedlike a Jetty, Aman would have pitty, To fee how thees gummed, Fingerd and thumbed: Gentlye Joynted, Greafed and annointed, Up to the knuckles, The bones her buckles, Cogether made falt, Her youth is far palt: Footedlike a Plane, Leggeslike a Crane, And yet thee will Jet, Like a Jolly Set, In her fur'd flocket And grap ruffet rocket, ndith Simper the cocket.

Per Huke of Lincolnegreene, Ichadbeene hers Iweene, Abore than fortie peare, And so it doth appeare: And the greene bare threds Looke like Sere weedes, Withered like hap.

The

The wooll worne away, And pet I dare lap, Sheethinks her selfe aap Upon the hollidar, 119hen thre doth her array. And girdeth in her getes, Stitched a pranched with pletes: Her Kittle Bristow red. with cloaths upponher head, That ther wer a sowe of lead, waithen in a wonder wife, Alter the Sarazens gile. with a whim wham, knit with a trim tram, Uponherbraine pan Like an Egiptian, Capped about, mohen thee goeth out, Der selfe for to shew, Shee draweth downe the dew. with a paire of heeles, Asbroad as two wheeles, Shee hobbles as thee goes. mith her blancket hole. Her shoone smeard with tallow, Greafed uppon bi t, That daubeththe Skirt. Primus Passus. And this comely Dame,

And this comely Dame, I bederstand her name Is Elynor Rumming, At home in her wonning: And as men say

Shee dwelt in Sothray, In a certen stede Beside Lederhede, Shee is a tonnish giv, The Dewill and shee be Sib.

T Keo and smilde, but at the last, Las toward the towne mine eye I caft, In mingled tropes I might beholde Momen and men (some gong, some olde) Like to a Spring-ride, arongly flowing To Hogsdon, not one hackward going. Dut of the Citty ruth'o the areame, A while (me thought) I vid but dzeame, What I faw people, till at late. Hogidon oze-flowoe, it (wel'o lo fait. I mulbe that from the Citty benturbe Such heapes: for the the Spring was enterde, They flock's not thus to heare the Tunc Dithatbiro who fings best in lune, (Belip'd the Cuckoe) as yet bernote Shee had not perfed, but by rote: Be durft hæling pet, being not able In Englift, but in --- to gabble. Bor was it like they made thefe throngs. To heare the Nightingals fad fonce. For Luft (in thefe dayes) beares fuch vice. They are but mock'd that checke that Vice.

Still moze and moze this Sca brake in, Bet ebb'd in one belfe houre agen, The Voyagers that first did Vaile, (Pauing their Lading) homeward faile. But with a stoe-winde were they driven, Bet all cast anchor in one Pauen. Ap went my failes. With much ado, In the same Port I anchorde to. Being landed there, all I could finde

Was this, They came to hunt the Hinde. Into their Parke I foathwith went. Beingentred, all the apre was rent With a most strange confused novie. That founded nothing but mere bopce. Amazoe & Amd to fe a Crowd Df Civill Throats &cetch b out fo lomb! (As at a New-play) all the Roomes Did (marme with Gentiles mir'd with Groomes. So that I truly thought, all These Came to le Shore, or Pericles. And that (to have themselves well plac'd) Thus brought they viaualis (they fed fo faft) But then (agen wa thought) This shoale Smom thither for Bakers boale D2 Brewers, and that for their foules fakes. They thus were fern'd with Ale and cakes: Foz lugs of Ale came ræling in. As if the Porshad brunkards bin.

ATayler (that had narrow eyes Through fumes that by to his braines did rise). Bot Abyth'arme, (chilogen they fay, And foles and Donkerds, truth bewrap) Dim therefore I delirde to thow Tothe all these met. - Tis Pimlyco-My Friend, Tis Pimlyco (he cryde) And no worde could I act belide. This made me madder then befoze, I alk'd another, and beel woze Zoundes — I'me ten strong in Pimlyco — What's that faide 3 ? -- Rowr Pinilyco --And backe, at least the yardes be reiles,-Pimlyco trips vp good mens heeles (Lisping) hecryes, and downe hefalls. Det for more imigeo - fill be calls.

Withat Pimlyco thould meane I wondzed, Because solowd that mozd Gill thundred From all their throats through all their cares,

H

At length, a reverend man (whose yeares Bab tourn's his head and beard all gray, And came but to beholde That Play, And not to act himselse The Vice) Wolde all the Dronken Misteries. And that the Ale got such high Fame, Only by that fond, sencelesse Name.

3 laugh'o to fee a World (fo wife, So subtile in all Villanies. So scozning to be laugh'd to scozne) Should be so drownde with Ale in Corne Bet fince in Hogidon all ran mad. I playbe the Mad-man to, and hab Sop lug brought in, a braught or twaine Wave fuch hot boyling in my braine. Mbat (faster then their Pots were filoe) From my Invention were billile Verses in Pimlyco's high prayle, Pimlyco crownbe my bead with bages. Foz Craight I felt my felfe a Poet, And (like some fooles) in Rime must show it. Betfirft Atournde o'ze Skeltons Rimes With those mad times to weigh our Times, And try how Elynor Rummings Ale, Was Brew'd; and Drawne, and fet to Sale, What Guefts brunk there, and what Drinke heere, In this wilde Lantskip fhall appeare.

But to make up my tale,
She brueth nappy Ale,
And maketh thereof poort fale,
Eo trauaplers, to tynkers,
Eo sweaters, to swinkers,
And all good Ale drinkers,
That will nothing spare,
But drinke till they stare,

And bring them selves bare. With now away the Mare, And let vs flay care, As wife as an hare. Lome who so will To Elynor on the hill, with fill the Lupfill. And lit thereby still. Barly and late. Thither commeth Kate, Cisley and Sare, With their legges bare, And also their fect, Hardly full bnsweet. with their heeles daggeb. Their kirtles all to lagged, Their smockes all to ranged, mith titters and tatters. Bzing dishes and platters, with all their might running, To Elynor Rumming, To have of her Tunning, Shee leaueth them of the hame, And thus beginneth the game.

Some wenches come unbraced, with their naked pappes,
That flippes and flappes,
It wigges and it wagges,
Like tawner fastron bagges,
A fort of fowle drabbes,
All farmy with trabbes,
Some be fly bitten,
Some skeind as a kitten,

CZ

Some

Dome with a shoor clowte. Binde their heads about, Some haue no haire lace, Their lockes about their face. Their trelles butruft, All ful of volust. Somelooke firaway, Some cawly mawly, full untidy teages, Like rotten egges, Such alewd fort. To Elinor resort, From tyde to tyde: Abide, abide. And to you shalbe told. Howher Aleisfold. Comaint and to molde. Secundus Passus.

Some have no momey, Ehatthither commy, for their Ale to pay, Chat is a threwd aray. Elinour tweared, nay Peethall not beare away Nor Ale for nought By him that me bought.

Mithher dog hay, Haue these dogges away, with get me a staffe, The Cwine eate my drasse, Strike the hogs with a club, (tub, They have drunke up my swilling For be there never so much prease, These

These swine goe to the hre dese. The low with her pigges, The Bose his taile weignes Against the bre bench. with fo, there is a stench. Gather by thou wench, Seell thou not what is fall. Take by dzit and all, And beare out of the hall, God aine it ill preuing. Clenly as euill cheuina. But let be turne playne. There wee left agayne, for agill a patch ag that. The hennes run in the malbiat, for they goeto rouft, Strapt ouer the Ale iouft, And dong when it comes In the Ale tonnes, Then Elinor taketh The mall boll, and haketh The hennes dong away, And skommeth it in a trap pohere as the Pestis, with her maungy fiftig: And sometimes the blens, The dong ofher hennes And the Ale together. And faith Goffip come hither, This Ale shall be thicker, And floure the moze quicker, for I may tell you, I learned it of a Jew, nohen £ 3 when I began to brew, Drinke now while it is new. And pee may it brooke, It shall make you looke Ponger than pou bee Decres two or three. For peemay proue it by me, Behold the laid, and fee, How bright Tam of blee, Ich am not cast away, That can my hulband lay, When wee kille and play, In lust and in liking. He calleth me his whyting, His Mulling, and his Mittine His Mobbes and his Lunny, His freeting and his honny, With balle my pretty bonny, Thouart worth good and monny, Chis make I myfalyzefanny, Will that he dreame and dromp. For after all our sport, Than will bee ront and inost, Then sweetly together we ipe, Astwo Diagesinaftpe. But we will turne playne, nohere we left agapne.

Tertius pallus.
In ftead of copie and monny,
Some bring her a conny,
And some a pot with honny,
Some a salt, and some a spoone,
Some their hose, some their shoon.

Some

Some ran a good trot, with a skillet ora pot, &c.

Cum multis alys, que nunc perseribere longum est.

> Hoc est Skeltonicum, Incipit Pimlyconicum.

Pimlyco now let us fing, Rich Pimlyco, the new found Spaing, Where men and women both together, To warme their vaines in frofty weather, Albere men and women hot blouds cole, By brincking Pimlycoes bopled poole. Strong Pimlyco, the nourithing foode To make men fat, and bzed pure blob; Deepe Pimlyco, the Well of Glee, That drawes by merry company. Bewitching Pimlyco, that tres The Rich and Poore, the Foole and Wife, All in one knot. Df that we write; Inspire pour Poet to indite, Dou Barlie Mules Pimlyconian, Descornes the Muses Helyconian; (Doze Soulest) they none but water brincke, But Pimlyco deopt into his pucke, Dis lines Gali fige with merry gale, Be Musc is like to Pimlyco Ale. Pot the neat Mine De Orleans; Doz of Hebrian, (belt in France;) Rot Gascoigne, nor the Burdeux Vine, Pos that which flowes from lwift fote Rhyne; Bot Sheerys Sacks, noz Charnico, Peter Semine, noz Mallago, Dos th'Amber-colored Candie grape, Which druncke with Egges makes men to—Ape. Por can the Greekish Vintage thow Я

Alignoz matching Pimlyco. Bet Hipocras (the dainke of women.) 1202 Ballards (that are bere, but common,) Co; the fatlecherous Alligant, Mahole Juice repaires what Backes bee want. Poz Maters Dawne by Distillations, With medinable Dperations, As Rosa Solis, Agua Vita, And Nugs of Balme, lo quicke, and logighty, Do, northe Irth Viquebagh, Di which, the Kerne whole pontes will quaffe. Strong Viquebagh'i that hotlier burnes Than Sackes, and white the Entrailes turnes. Po; welfh Metheglyn, (browne as berry) Lancafbier Syder, Wolgefterfbier Perry, Por vet a draught of Darby Ale, 4202 mother Bunch, (long fince growne ffale.) Auz that old two-peny Ale of Pynder, That many a Poster oft bid hinder from carrying Burdens, fog (alacket) The Ale had Arenath to breake his backe.

Poz alithole Dzinkes of Pozthzen Climes, Withole Bzewings hall fill be our Kimes, Brant, Renfque, and the clare Romayne, The Belo, Crasso, and Patisane, Pecua (to them as is our Bare,)
With spiced Meades (wholome, but dere)
As Meade Obarne, and Meade Cherunck,
And the vase Quasie by Pesants drunck.
With all the rest that whet the sprites
Of Russes and cold Muscouytes.
Pot all these Drinkes, nor thowsand mes,
Can reach the same of Pimlyco.

To prove (d Pimlyco) these thine honors, Armies each day spread Crimson banners, And with hye Colours, and quicke shot, Fight listly till the field be got. All Seres, all Degræs, all Pations,

All men of Arts oz Decupations,
(As if foz gayne to some great Rayse,)
Dnely foz Ale to the repayre.
The English, Scottish, Dutch and French,
Sit whilling here upon one bench:
If but of Pinlyco they drinke hard,
Betweet them falls not one foule tword,
They kille like brothers, Dutch, French, Scot,

Are all Due in a Pimlyco Pot.

Bither come Sergeant's with their Baccs. Dither come Bailiffes with red faces. Wither come Lads and arealie Lownes. Wither come pockets full of Crownes. Dither comethole can fcarce find Baile For fire pence, pet fpend eight in Ale. Minrers battle (here) their pence, The Diueil can fcarce keepe Brokers hence. The Lawyer that in Terme-time takes Hat fees, rleades here for Ale and Cakes. Dodors, Proctors, Clarkes, Atturneis, To Pimlyco make sweattie iourneis, And (being well Arm'd with Buckram bags,) Fight bnoer Hogidons Charlet Cags. The Minde our Merchants this war brines. Will their men take up for their wives Romes befoze hand: and oft it hits. Pot farre from them some Fish-wife fits. Hoz (here) of manners none take bed. First come, first fera'd first fera'd, first fed. Citizens, Souldiers, Sea-men, Schollers, Gentlemen, Clownes, Millers, Colliers, Mercers, Taylors, Poets, Booke-bynders, Grocers, Curriers, Goldsmiths, goldsiners, Silkemen, Botchets, Drapers, Dray-men, Courtiers, Carters, Church-men, Lay-men, Midwines, Apple-wines, Cheape-side Ladics, Old Beldames, and yong Tiffany Babies, Scotch-bums, red Wast-coats, fine Pawne-wenches, \mathbf{n} 耍

In the fame romes, on felfe fame benches, Crown's all together: All Daincke, All Day, Why then hould any give the way? Romes here are by Reversion got, As Offices, fo men win the Bot. Both Pray and Pap, and wait, and woe, That foure map bup, what goes for two, Det tis refulde. The Serton scornes To budge to alknight. All fag their Tourns As at the Conduit of the Will, And nothing's beard, but Fill, Fill, Fill, Bespeaking one anothers Cups. As men do Chaples in Barbols hops Dn Christmasse Ceues. Abundred laps Weld by for cakes; As many caps But off foz Ale, whose juice embalmes Their Browes)tis beg'd as t'were an almes, Det all bold Silner by, and erp Take mine, (as at the Lottery.)

Drawers ned not baule Anon, Anon, Each Gueft for his owne Drinck does run, Braue men turne Tapfters, Momen Caters, For Menthat lit, there s Forty Maiters, French-Hoods, and Veluer Caps being prowd Sometimes, i'th Henrooft close to crowd.

D Crange! what makes the Cripple heere: When Arongell legs can haroly beare Those that And on them, if they Kand But Aist wit in Pimlyco Land: Wet even that Wazetch, (that halts on wod) Althose sue forlongs off it Aod, Sweares he'le lympe to't, and so't he goes, And being there, his false legs boes lose. Asserbing, gropes the Blind, and cries, Pimlyco drinchs not out mine Eyes. Pimlyco does so please the Houth, Thou, (the Pimlyconian Hose,)

Wad thy Head bin but like that Post, Mhich Scozes what Ale and Cakes come in. Df greater Reckoning habit thou bin. Baoft thou had Braines, but like to fome, No know what Wether was to come By'th Almanacke; thou habit change the lucke, Thy Hynde ere this bao prou'de a Bucke. Alacke! thy wits are loft in Brewings; Th'art growne farke mad with tw good Doings Thou, onely cryett, Who payes the Shot? (Wiben the Maine Matters are fozaot.) Thou Barny Foole, at last grow mile. Build the Boule round with Balleries, Like to a Wlap house; so2 thy Ale (Be't bad, be't good, bet new, be't Stale) Brings thægod Audience: from each shoze, Ships of Foole's lanch, to fake thy Dore; Grepgobigall Gulls faile backe agen, Thei'le pay the money to come in: Bave then, thy wife and thou, the dozes, Let those within wipe out the Scozes. Bet (D vile counsell!) why do I labour Mohaue a Chaiftian woong his neighbour? Bach afternone the House beingfull. Makes Fortune blind, 02 Gelds The Bull. Po, no, (thou Pimlyconian Brewer) Thy Castle of Comfort stands to fure. (Moated with Ale, and wal'd with cakes) Tho whirle-winds blow, it never hakes; Therefore it needs no reparations, Po Rampyres, no Fortifications, But onely Shot: Charge them Pell Mell, Let Pimlyco Ordinance go off well; And Hogidon femes a Towns of warre, Where Constables the Captaines are, Leading to Stocks (with Bils and Staves) Whole fropes of brunchen Whores and Knaues. Wilho(tho they cannot fand) yet go, Swearing. 配 2

Spearing, Zounds hey brave Pimlyco. Dou thereforethat do trade in Cans, (Virginians, 02 Craconians,) Pouthat in whole pots brinke pour bone. Lping bead-bruncke at The Labor in vaine: You Apzon men, that welkely get By pour hard labour and your fweat, Silver (earn'o beare, but honeltly) Onough to find your family. Moto leave those places (nam'o before) Dz if pou'le Dzinke, maintaine a Scoze. But let your Wages (in one Summe) We wifely fau'd till Sunday come, But (mith it) bug, not bread, nor broth. maz haufe, noz hofe, noz fboe, noz cloth, for foo let wife and chilozen Die, Sacke Pimlyco bowne merrily, There dance and frend the day in laughter. T'is meat and vinke a whole weke after. Dou Ballad-Singers, that boeline Pou Ballad-Singers, that doe live On halfe penny almes that Ideots give, In every Street (to druncken Potes) Set out your bill anous yelping throates. That through all eares your Tunes may flow, with prairies of Browne Pimlyco.

Pou Pocts that of Helicon boat,
Those mornings brought without a toat
You alwayes take, but ne're do so,
Comming to tipple Pimlyco,)
D be more wise, and scorne that licquor,
Drincke this, which makes your Duses quicker,
Of This, three full Pota (Insure yee)
Leaves you starke brouke with braver furie.

You that plough up the falt Sea flod. To fetch from farre, the Grapes beare blod. And with Dut-landish drinks confound And mad the Brayne that is mod found: Pour very Ships going never to ttedby, (waith

(With that moil Freight) but ever giody Andræling (as an ominous Signe, That Those must rale, who Trave in Wine, From Shoze to Shoze what næd you faile, When Pimlyco bzæds such Dzagon-Alee

Pou that of men bære rechnings make, Pet at the Barre (for what they Take) Arraigne them, Charging them to Stand, Till they have all held by The Band: Downe with your Bulbes, and your Grates, Draw pour selves thorow the Citie Bates, To Sacke the Walls of Pimlyco, Which day by day more frong do grow, And will in time (to their owne Trench) Dzine backe both Spanish Wines and French: Dz if no Shet can batter bowne This Pimlyco Fort; then, in the Towne, And in the fields and Common way. Witch Tents, and opening vilpian Pour Banners (Dawne with Red and White) Under those cullors Men will fight Will they can Cand, elle All are loft, And cut off by the Pimlyco Boft, Bere therefoze fownb, Anon, Anon, For the mapne Army here coms on.

D you that (enery Done) hold Feafts,
(And in the Truc-loue-knot are Guefts)
And doe with Wreathes your Temples crowne,
(At Lothbury, and at Horsey-downe,)
Let those Deare Fleshly-Meetings go,
And Bath your Braynes in Pimlyco.

Pou that by Enginous Mbeles can force Myocs to run backe and turne their Courle, Whole wits in water fill do Diue, (D, if you with that Arades thould thrive,) With lowd borce to the Citie speake, That the her Conduit-Heads would breake, And onely build One Conduite-Head.

Яt

At Pimlyco, that through pipes of Lead, The pretions Streame may be connapo, And Crafts-men so at home be frayb.

Pou Bawds, non Bandars, Buncks and wholes, That are chalk d up on Ale-house scores, Pou that lay Petricoats, Bownes, and Smocks To pawne for drinks to cure the Pore, At Pimlyco some will take them from you, To drinke there then, shall be the come you.

Df Aley-Hands there are moze, (Some new discovered, some befoze)
But neither th' Dlo noz Pew of name, Can equal Pinlyco infame.

Dithese trange llands, Maka is one,
Maka does Border close upon
The Continent of Pimlyco,
And by her Streames moze rich does grow,
On Pimlyco Seas when tis fowle weather,
That no Ship can get in; then hither,
(To Maka) flie they with swolne Saile,
To buy the Iew of Maka's Alc.
Thy Knights (D Maka) now do flourish,
Pimlyco their renowne does nourish,
All sealty therefoze they doowe
And Service to guard Pimlyco.

Tripoly from the Turke mas taken,
But Tripoly is againe forlaken;
What Newes from Tripoly? Mould you know?
Christians slye thence to Pimlyco.

Eye-bright, (so fam'd of late so; Beere)
Although thy Name be numbred here,
Ahine ancient Honors now runne low;
Thou art fruck blind by Pimlyco.
The New-found Land, is now growen fale,
Hew to Terceras Ilands sagle;
The once well-mand, brave Ship of Hull,
That spred a sagle, proud, fiffe, and full,
Leaker oft, and does at Anchor lye:

Day, ouen St. Christopher malkes by. Pot halfe fo many Christians (now) Their knie befoze his White-croffe bow.

Run, (Red-cap) Run, among@the Reft, Thou art nam'd latt, that once wert beft, But (Red.cap) now thy Woll is worne, By Pimlyco is Red-cap thorne.

Dur weary Muse (here) leapes to Shore, Dn thele rough Seas the Saples no moze, This Voyage made the (for your fakes,) Spending thus much in Ale and Cakes.

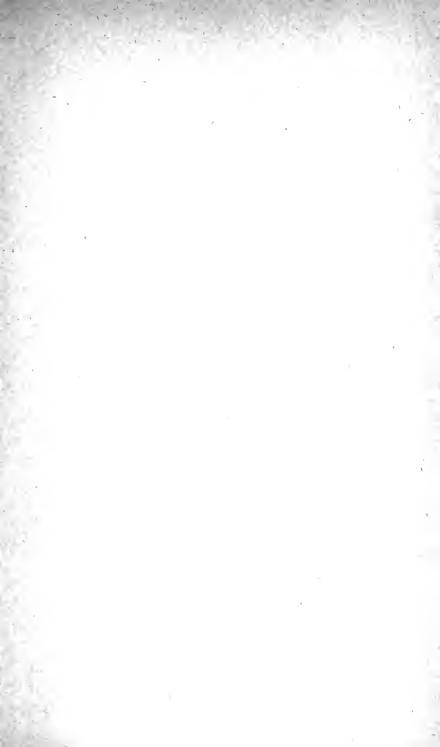

FINIS.

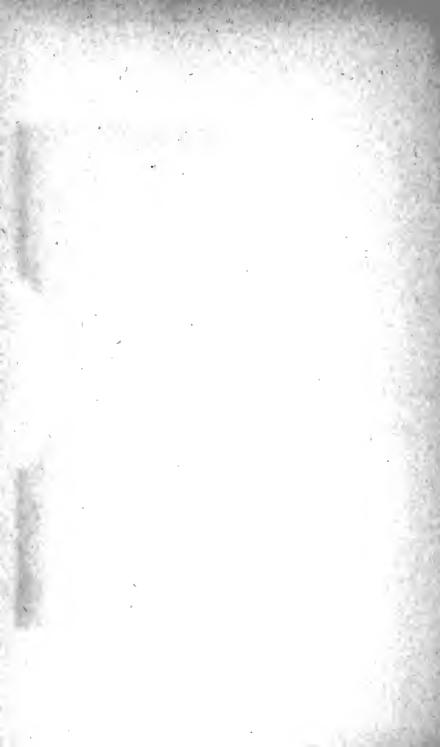

PR 2199 C6 1614a Cobbes prophecies

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

DTL AT DOWNSVIEW

D RANGE BAY SHLF POS ITEM C
39 14 11 12 04 005 7